Ph.D. PROGRAM*:

Inquiry Methodology is a unique and important program that is grounded in the unity of educational research methods and the research philosophy of social sciences. This program enables me to explore the intersections of qualitative, quantitative and mixed research as an integrated study. My training and research focus on researchers' positionality, intersubjectivities, and horizons expansions as trust, truth-seeking through methodology by looking at various challenges in the discourse, content, thematic, biographical, and participatory research designs. Finally, I am interested in the construction and reframing of recognition theory that might create reflective and intersubjective pragmatism in the educational research to overcome current methodological problems and articulate the philosophy of research practices and the maxims of research methodology. Specifically, my research practices are based on ethnography, autobiography, duo-ethnography, narrative, feminist, phenomenology, visual analysis, critical discourse analysis, and conversation analysis.

RESEARCH INTERESTS: Reflexivity, Positionality, Learning Experiences, Horizon Expansion, Expressionism, Poverty, Subaltern, Forensic in Educational Spaces, Critical Theory, Power, Care and Love, Public Sphere, and Civic Engagement.
